LONDON, 23 November 2018

XOV is providing a major airdrop to thousands of Infinito Wallet global users. The Airdrop registration period opens on 29 November for 2 weeks and will coincide with an improved user interface being released by Infinito Wallet to make their mobile wallet app even better. Every eligible registrant will receive 2,000 XOV Ethereum tokens within 5 days of the registration close date. XOV tokenholders will be able to use their XOV on the new Decentralised Asset Management Platform due to be launched in December. This enables XOV customers to enjoy trading in a range of popular digital assets including Bitshares-based stable assets.

XOV CEO, David Alexander-Knowles quotes: 'I am pleased that we can extend the XOV currency to many more people across the globe using our long standing relationship with Infinito Wallet, the leading universal wallet, and recommend their wallet to all of our customers.'

XOV is developing a global financial network for its customers that will provide a full range of decentralised financial products and services, leading to decentralised retail banking in the future. BitShares is a key strategic component in accomplishing these aims, with the first release of the XOV Decentralised Asset Management Platform (DAMP) being due for release in December. This will also coincide with a full re-development and rebrand of its website also due for release in December using New York based award winning website and marketing agency, Fishbat.

Infinito Wallet is positioning itself as a leading universal wallet for crypto users. Infinito Wallet serves as a gateway for users to maximise usage and potentials of their cryptocurrencies. By selectively expanding our partner network, Infinito Wallet aims to build an ecosystem of practical blockchain services including exchanges, ID/KYC solutions, and other blockchain-related business services. At the same time, we help support communities of developers and businesses with an open blockchain infrastructure of technologies and compliant-ready services, so that they can seamlessly build, launch, and operate innovative products and services efficiently.
